

Hello Matey_____

Whether it's keeping cool in summer or staying safe at night, you need the right tools for the job. Remember, being prepared by having the right gear is tantamount to you surviving whatever problem you may face.

Staying cool under the hot summer sun is necessary not only because feel sticky and sweaty is annoying. It also does a lot of good for the body. Too much exposure to the sun can lead to health issues ranging from sunburn to dehydration. We all know dehydration, when not treated immediately, can lead to death.

When it comes to power outages and other potentially dangerous situations in the dark, having the right lighting tools will surely help. Keep a tactical flashlight or collapsible lantern in your everyday carry kit so you'll always be ready to light up your surroundings when needed.

Enjoy,
